

Publication Agreement

This agreement (in brief)

By completing the online submission process, you confirm you accept this agreement.

- You assign copyright in the final, accepted article to us, and grant us the right of first publication.
- You retain the right to be identified as the author(s).
- We publish the final, accepted manuscript under a Creative Commons Attribution licence (CC BY 4.0). This licence allows anyone, including you, to share, copy, distribute, transmit, adapt and make commercial use of the work without needing additional permission, provided appropriate attribution is made to the original author or source.
- By using this licence, all articles in this Journal meet or exceed all funder or institutional requirements for research to be published Open Access.

Parties to this agreement

We (“We / Us / the Journal”) are:

Journal name _____

Journal contact email _____

And you (“You”) are:

Name: _____

Institution/affiliation: _____

Email: _____

You will be listed as the corresponding author.

Details

Title of article

Co-authors

You are acting on behalf of the following co-authors.

Name: _____
Institution/affiliation: _____
Email: _____

Name: _____
Institution/affiliation: _____
Email: _____

Name: _____
Institution/affiliation: _____
Email: _____

Name: _____
Institution/affiliation: _____
Email: _____

Name: _____

Institution/affiliation: _____

Email: _____

Name: _____
Institution/affiliation: _____
Email: _____

Name: _____

Institution/affiliation: _____

Email: _____

Name: _____
Institution/affiliation: _____
Email: _____

Agreement in full

By completing the online submission process, you confirm you accept this agreement. The following is the entire agreement between you and the Journal and it may be modified only in writing.

You and any co-authors

If you are completing this agreement on behalf co-authors, you confirm that you are acting on their behalf with their knowledge.

First publication

You:

- (i) grant us the right of first publication of this work;
- (ii) confirm that the work is original; and
- (iii) confirm that the work has not been published in any other form.

Once published, you are free to use the final, accepted version in any way, as outlined below under Copyright.

Copyright

You assign copyright in the final, accepted version of your article to us. You and any co-authors of the article retain the right to be identified as authors of the work.

We publish the final, accepted manuscript under a Creative Commons Attribution licence (CC BY 4.0). This licence allows anyone, including you, to share, copy, distribute, transmit, adapt and make commercial use of the work without needing additional permission, provided appropriate attribution is made to the original author or source.

Human-readable summary of the licence: <http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0>, which includes a link to the full licence text.

Under this licence you can use the final, published version of the article freely – such as depositing a copy in your institutional research repository, uploading a copy to your profile on an academic networking site or including it in a different publication, such as a collection of articles on a topic or in conference proceedings – provided that original publication in the Journal is acknowledged.

This agreement has no effect on any pre-publication versions or elements, which remain entirely yours, and to which we claim no right.

Reviewers hold copyright in their own comments and should not be further copied in any way without their permission.

Others' copyright

If your article includes others' copyright material (e.g. graphs, diagrams etc.), you confirm that your use either:

- (i) falls within the limits of fair dealing for the purposes of criticism and review or fair use;
OR
- (ii) that you have gained permission from the rights holder for publication in an open access journal.