

Sharing is easy, right?

Stockholm University services for research data and the conundrum of sharing

Tuija Drake, Librarian & Sofie Wennström, Analyst

Stockholm University Library, Sweden

Presentation from Figshare Fest in Amsterdam, The Netherlands on June 28th, 2017

Agenda

- Retrospect
- Assignment
- Organization
- Activities
- Summary

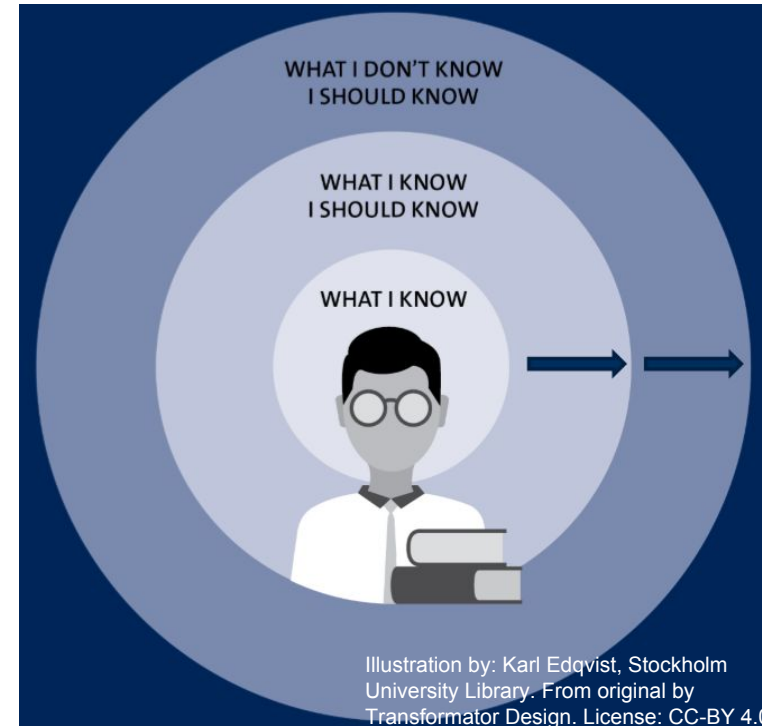

In retrospect...

Last time, we talked about...

- to expand the users' horizons
- to help users to become more self-reliant
- by making it easy to do the right thing

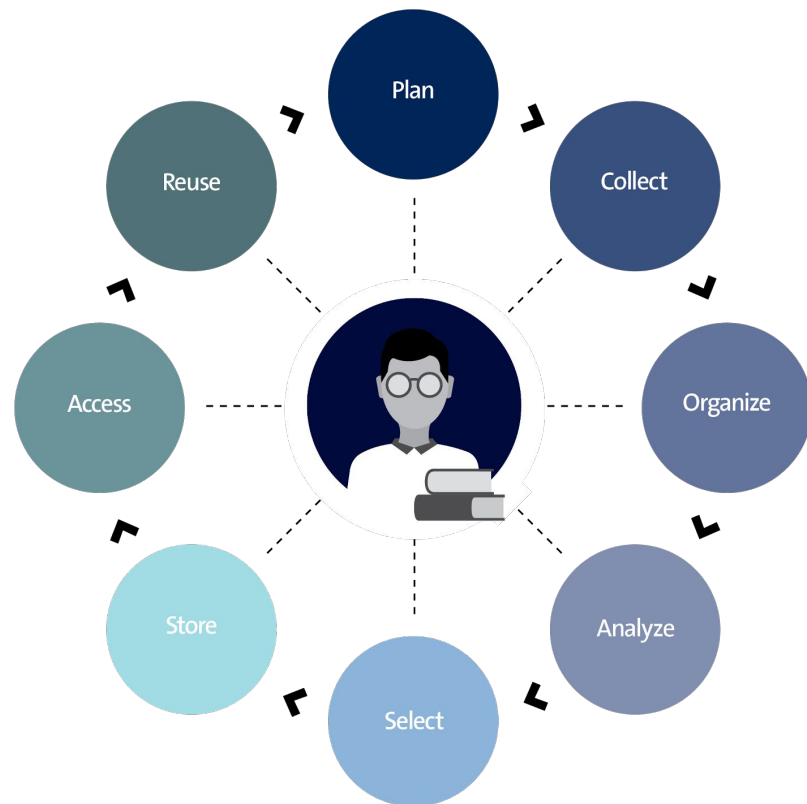

So, what is the status now?

The assignment

The University Library shall

- co-ordinate
- support
- plan for the infrastructure
- suggest policies
- choose a model for DMP
- participate in national projects

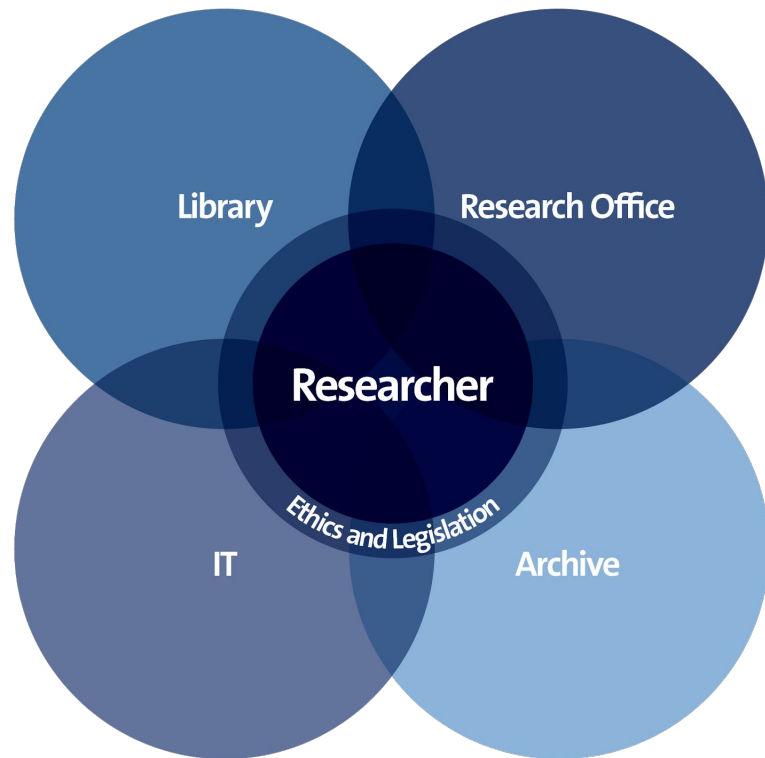

The support team

Co-operation across the sections:

- Co-ordinator
- Metadata librarians
- Research secretaries
- Archivist
- Legal advice

With the help of

- IT
- Educational support
- Open access specialist
- Communication officers

Our working principles

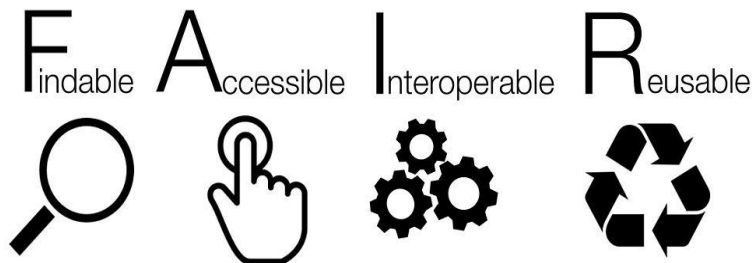

Our team is FAIR

F - Find us online

A - Access is key

I - Interoperability through co-operation

R - Reuse and share information with other stakeholders

Work in progress 2017

- Web resource
- Support
- Open Science lectures
- Pilot for training of PhD students
- Newsletter
- Researcher engagement

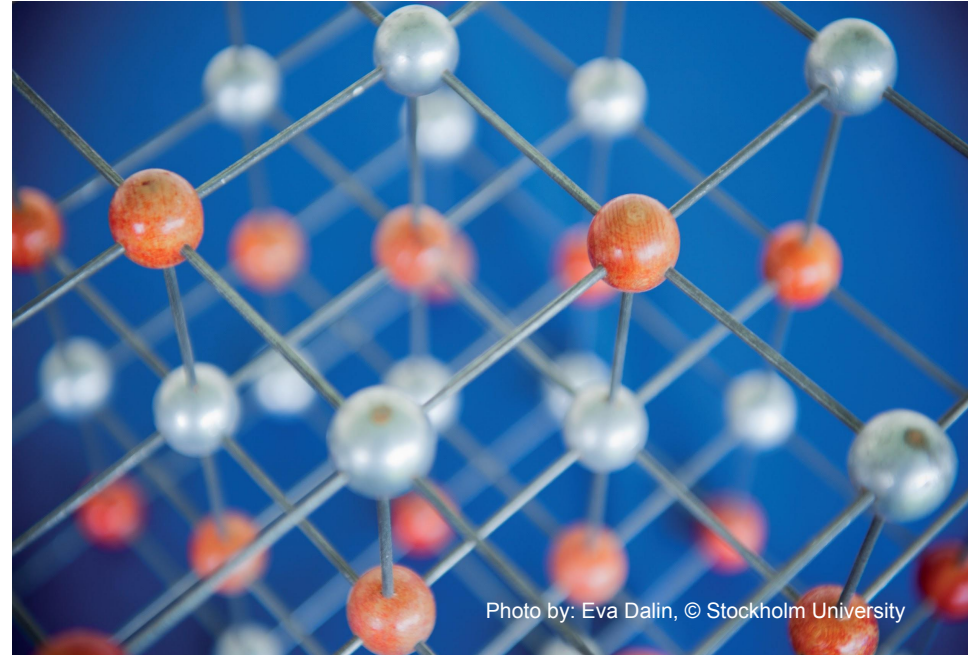

Creating knowledge hub

- A work in progress
- Design & concept
- Collaboration across sections
- Content creation
- Tone & language
- Text for web communication

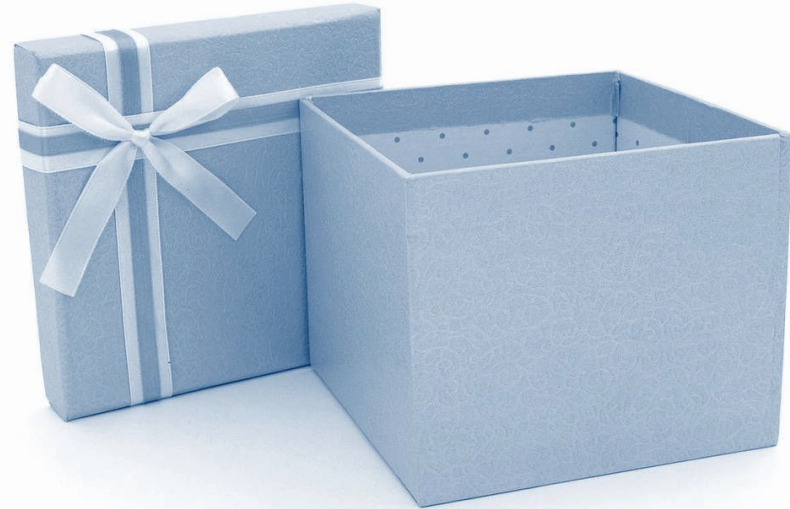

Reference group feedback

- Language
- Structure
- Definitions
- Subject specific portals
- Links
- Examples
- Target audience

Prospectives 2017–2018

- Incentives still in the works
- Language will have impact
 - Challenges with the concept of 'sharing'
- Education needed
- Legal implications
 - New EU directive for data protection

Questions? Feedback?

E-mail us:

sofie.wennstrom@sub.su.se

tuija.drake@sub.su.se

Knowledge Hub:

<http://su.se/english/library/publish/research-data>

Stockholm University Press Blog news flow:

<https://blog.stockholmuniversitypress.se/>

Previous presentation:

<https://doi.org/10.17045/sthlmuni.4311860.v2>

Thank you!

image: CC 0 Public Domain

