

Design for visual communication: Challenges and priorities

Edited by Klimis Mastoridis, Niki Sioki, Mary C. Dyson

Cambridge Scholars Publishing, 2019 | ISBN 978-1-5275-2954-0

Table of contents

Introductory note by Klimis Mastoridis

Part I: Visual communication design and interdisciplinarity

Mary C. Dyson, Visual communication: identity crisis or identity achievement?

Ann Bessemans, The gap between science and typography

Jeanne-Louise Moys, Repositioning aesthetics to improve synergies between research and practice – a typographic perspective

Part II: The changing role of the designer

Alison Black, Information design to make an impact on health care quality: is a user-centred approach enough?

Aaron Harvey, Designer as facilitator: the evolving role of the graphic designer in the practice of participatory design

Part III: Research practice and the future development of visual communication design

Sue Perks and Wibbo Bakker, The Isotype influence on the Henry Dreyfuss Symbol Sourcebook

Yiannis Papadopoulos and George D. Matthiopoulos, “Jolie Grieckx”: from non-printed matter to a printed anecdote

Niki Sioki, A contribution to the history of book design in Greece: printing the Primer with the Sun

Dimitris Legakis, Greek type specimen books