WHAT are

Citation, reference, bibliography and plagiarism (Sabnis, 2018)

Citation

A citation is a mention of the original source (article, books, website, etc.) in main text of a document.

Reference

A reference list corresponds to a complete list of citations, appearing at the end of the document.

Bibliography

A bibliography is a list of additional materials not mentioned in the text, but supplementary to it.

Plagiarism

Plagiarism is passing someone's work as your own without obtaining permission or acknowledging their contribution.

WHAT goes

Into a reference (Sabnis, 2018)

Basic components of a reference:

- ❑ Author(s)
- ❑ Title of works
- ❑ Second title (if any)
- ❑ Journal
- ❑ Publication date/year
- ❑ Volume (and issue)
- ❑ Page number(s)
- ❑ Editor/translator/other contributor
- ❑ URL or web address: for online items
- ❑ DOI: where there is one (only one of URL/DOI may be necessary)
- ❑ Date accessed: when you looked at an online item. This is often handy to know, even if your referencing style doesn't require it.

WHY Reference

Six knowledge-related reasons for referencing (Neville, 2010)

Facilitates the tracing of the origin of ideas

1

Helps you to build a web of ideas

2

Supports your own voice in academic writing

3

4

Validates arguments

5

Helps to spread knowledge

6

Acknowledges the work of others

WHEN to Reference

Six scenarios (Neville, 2010)

- To inform the reader of the source of tables, statistics, diagrams, photographs and other illustrations included in your assignment
- When describing or discussing a theory, model, practice or example associated with a particular writer; or using their work to illustrate examples in your text (this links specifically to the next two items)
- To give weight or credibility to an argument supported by you in your assignment
- When giving emphasis to a particular theory, model or practice that has found a measure of agreement and support amongst commentators
- To inform the reader of the sources of direct quotations or definitions in your assignment
- When paraphrasing another person's work, which is outside the realm of common knowledge, and that you feel is particularly significant, or likely to be a subject of debate.

WHEN you Do not need for reference (Neville, 2010)

when presenting historical overviews

when presenting
your own experiences

In conclusions
when you are repeating ideas
previously referenced

when summarizing what is regarded as
'common knowledge'

BE careful

About what/how you cite (Sabnis, 2018)

Literature reviews

Although reviews article are a brilliant source of knowledge, it is best to cite the original research article to rightfully give credit to the authors who actually did all the work.

Keeping it current

Ensure that you have cited the most up-to-date sources.

Wikipedia

Not the most dependable source; the content changes over a period of time and is not fully trustworthy. Therefore, it is best not to cite it.

Data

It is now also becoming common to cite data. The Force11 website provides guidelines on doing it properly.

Self-citation, is it okay?

SELF-citation

Sabnis (2018)

- Self-citation occurs when authors cite their own work.
- Nowadays, major industry players have sophisticated tools to identify instances of excessive self-citation (e.g., Nature blog article mentions that 66 journals were banned from Web of Science for excessive self-citation).
- It could be author/journal/co-author/publisher- specific.

You can cite your previous work if:

- ☐ Your current study is a continuation of the previous study or build upon it.
- ☐ You are building a coherent piece of work in a given field.
- ☐ The ratio of the number self-cites to external ones is comparable to that of others in your field.
